Carolinas Symposium

The ninth annual meeting of the Carolinas Symposium met at the Appalachian Center for Continuing Education on October 9 & 10, 1982 hosted by the ASU History Department. The Symposium, which held its first five meetings on our campus, now alternates its gatherings with other schools and it returned here after meeting at Wake Forest University. It will return to ASU after meeting at Clemson next year.

This year's Symposium featured twenty sessions which included consideration of Renaissance Erotica, Victorian Art and Architecture, Yeats and the Romantic Tradition, Georgian Politics, The Imperial Mind, and Utilizing Computers in British Studies. Dr. Sheldon Hanft, who served as program chairman for this and the previous symposia, is to be congratulated for this rich and well attended meeting which brought over 150 scholars to our campus and which included an address by J.H. Hexter from the National Humanities Center.

Asian Studies

ASU will host the Association for Asian Studies, Southeast Regional Conference, January 20-23, 1983 at the Continuing Education Center. Those interested in attending the conference should call David White, 262-2282.

Forest for the Trees

On November 2, 1981, Dr. Charles R. Young of Duke University spoke to a group of ASU's faculty and students on the topic of "The Forest in the Middle Ages." Dr. Young is a professor in the Department of History at Duke and is also associate dean of the graduate school. His talk concerned a subject on which he has published several articles and a book. Dr. Young traced the development of the concept of land designated as royal forest in England, France and Germany during the medieval period.

*Max Dixon

If you answered Dr. Max Dixon to all of the questions, you're very good!

Dr. Dixon came to ASU's Social Studies Department in 1956. His chairman was Dr. Julian Yoder and his President, Dr. William Plemmons. Both have fond memories of Max. Dr. Plemmons wrote recently, "Those of us responsible in earlier years for professional personnel at Appalachian considered ourselves fortunate many times. One such time was when we were looking for a promising young faculty member in American/Southern history and Dr. J. Max Dixon accepted our offer of the position. Another such time was when the conglomerate department of social studies was divided into specific subject matter areas and Dr. Dixon, after some reluctance and hesitancy on his part, agreed to become the first chairman of the department of history. When his reluctance was questioned he referred to his 'comparative' newness at Appalachian, his lack of administrative experience, and his love of teaching. We teased and cajoled by telling him that he was not as new as the department and that he could teach all he wanted to. He lived up to all of our expectations of him."

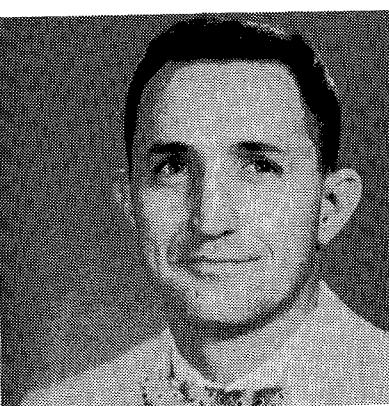

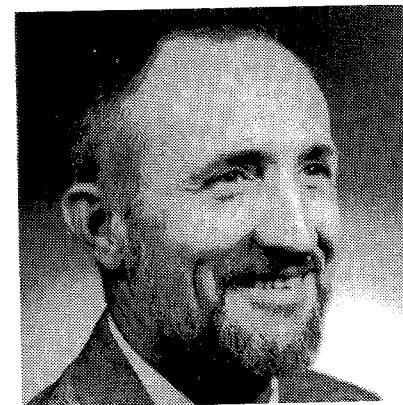

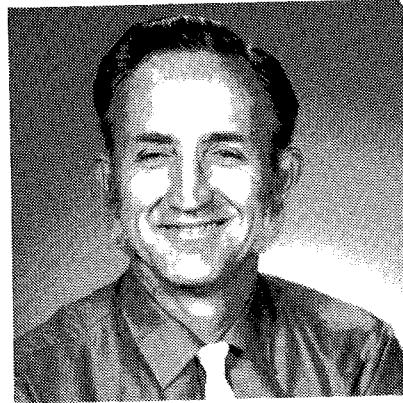

As if he and Dr. Plemmons had collaborated, Dr. Yoder said, "Max came to us with a very impressive resume. Students soon found him not only well versed in his field, but also patient, understanding and caring—caring in their academic and personal problems. He continued in these traits down through the years."

When Dr. Dixon became chairman of the newly created History Department in 1965, the move to Duncan Hall took place very soon afterwards. The History Department had been on the third floor of the Administration Building. Luckily we moved before the great fire! Included in this department's members were Mrs. Ina Van Noppen, Leo Pritchett, Rena Hoover, John Justice, John Kirk, Eloise Melton and Carrie Winkler. Growth for the History Department and ASU was rapid in these years and several others were hired: Peter Petschauer, Carl Ross, Winston Kinsey, George Antone, Sheldon Hanft, and Charles Blackburn.

In all the interviews which made this article, the theme continues to appear: Max's hard work and loyalty to this department and ASU. Few realize the extra hours he has devoted selflessly. His wife knows! but she, too, realizes what joy he finds in his work. This joy is obvious to all of us in his teaching and in his attitude toward life.

Eloise Melton, who has served under four chairmen, summed it up when she said, "There was never anyone as hardworking, sincere, or professional as Max."

He continues to teach, to edit the Watauga County Times...Past for the Historical Society, to travel with his beautiful wife "Pete" and to endear himself to succeeding generations of students. Today's faculty finds it a privilege to "have him around."

Newport Summer Program

by Claudia J. Strickland

The group of faculty and students which went to the department's summer program in Newport this year left Boone as nine people facing an eighteen hour drive and came back to Boone as the next best thing to immediate family. There arose inside jokes and lore, some of it even having to do with what we were studying.

Those involved were: faculty, Raymond H. Pulley (teaching Architecture of New England and a graduate seminar on New England culture), Elizabeth B. Bond (The American China Trade), and John J. Bond of the Biology Dept. (Landscapes and Gardens of New England), and students: Karen Brinegar, Pam Edwards, Michael Howell, Jon Spencer, Susan Storcks, and Claudia Strickland.

Field trip days included visits to the Arnold Arboretum, Quincy Market, the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library, Old Sturbridge Village, Salem, Plymouth Plantation, the Museum of the American China Trade, and other sites where examples of architecture, gardens, or China trade items were to be found.

We also learned each other: who gets cranky when, and what to do about it; who has any object that might be wished for (including the makings of an ice bag); who walks faster than anyone else; who gets thrilled about what; and why it is that turkeys will flog the breadman and his delivery truck.

The 1982 Newport Summer Program was an experience of the caliber that those who participated will draw on for years to come. Some of us go so far as to place our hands over our hearts when the name Newport is mentioned nowadays, whatever the context. One of our students has since been heard to say, "I thought this was going to be a vacation, but I've learned more here than I would have on campus."

Anyone wishing to speak to a student regarding the Newport program should contact Claudia Strickland at the History Department Office.

Ulster-American Heritage Symposium

Beginning July 29th, the History Department along with Western Carolina and the University of North Carolina at Asheville sponsored the Ulster-American Heritage Symposium. Begun in 1976 in Ulster, Northern Ireland, this symposium has met biennially (Asheville, '78; Ulster '80; and Boone '82) to discuss the common history, roots, and customs of these two areas. Thirty-two visitors from Northern Ireland (including 7 under the age of 18!) arrived in Boone where the majority of them took part in "homestays" with local families.

Representing Northern Ireland was a wide variety of individuals. Just to give you an idea of who they are will also convey an impression of the scope of the conference.

Sir Robert and Lady Kidd. Sir Robert is Pro-Chancellor of the New University of Ulster and Chairman of the University Council.

Mr. Eric Montgomery, Chief Executive of the Ulster-American Folk Park in Omagh.

Mr. W. T. Ewing, Registrar at N.U.U. and one of the "founding father" of the symposium.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lelievre, former Vice Chancellor, Magee University, Londonderry; now living in London.

Dr. Sean Connolly of the History Department at N.U.U.

Miss Pat Stewart, Personal Assistant to the Registrar and Vice-Chancellor, N.U.U.—in other words their ring leader. She was tour guide extraordinaire!

Miss Caitriona Ni Ghallchoir of the Irish Studies Department of the N.U.U.

Dr. and Mrs. Peter Roebuck of the History Department at N.U.U.

Dr. and Mrs. T.H. Mullin, Coleraine Co. District Historian.

Dr. and Mrs. Philip Robinson of the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum in Londonderry.

Mr. and Mrs. Denis McNeice of the Ulster Folk Park in Londonderry.

Mr. and Mrs. J.D.G. Evans. Mr. Evans is an expert on James McCosh, while Mrs. Evans works for the Northern Ireland Tourist Board.

Mr. James and Dr. Rosalind Lunney of Queen's University in Belfast.

Dr. and Mrs. J.E. Harris of the Education Centre at N.U.U.

Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Parkhill of the Public Records Office of Northern Ireland in Belfast.

Participants in the symposium's presentations from this side of the "great pond" included John Speers of the Scotch-Irish Society of America; Albert C. Leighton, State University of New York, Oswego; Tyler Blethen and Curtis Wood of Western Carolina University; James Gillespie, Cleveland State University; Henry Glassie, University of Pennsylvania; Erving Beauregard, University of Dayton; William L. Fisk, Muskingum College; B.G. Moss, Limestone College; Daniel W. Patterson, UNC-Chapel Hill; Bethany K. Dumas, University of Tennessee, Knoxville; James Braden, Northern Virginia Community College; Russel L. Gerlach, Southwest Missouri State University; Thomas S. Brown, West Virginia University; Lester C. Lamon, Indiana University; Jon G. Crawford, Mars Hill College; John Fair, Auburn University; and, Richard K. McMaster, James Madison University.

ASU and Boone program participants were Rogers Whitener, Tom McGowan, Pat Beaver, Winston Kinsey, Robert W. Proffitt, Sanna R. Gaffney, John Heaton, Carl and Charlotte Ross, and Ruby Lanier.

Good food, better music (one night Clint Howard's band entertained the group with an evening of Bluegrass), and the best camaraderie made the over 170 registered participants enjoy the long weekend. When August 1 arrived, all departed with the anticipation of 1984 when we shall meet again in Northern Ireland.

The History Department is planning a trip to Northern Ireland for that summer's symposium as well as a follow-up tour of Ireland. If you are interested in being kept abreast of our plans, please drop us a line and we will be sure to add you to the "Ireland 1984" mailing list. We also have available a lovely brochure from the Northern Ireland Tourist Board we'd be happy to send you.

Journals and Newsletters Feature

Charles Blackburn edits the Social Studies Journal of the North Carolina Council for the Social Studies, a biannual publication by and for the 450 members of the North Carolina Council for Social Studies. The journal focuses on providing the elementary and secondary classroom teacher with suggestions for presenting social studies to their students.

Michael Moore is the editor of Albion, the only quarterly British Studies journal published in North America. Albion focuses on British history, politics, and literature, and has more than 1000 subscribers. The journal is recognized internationally for its contribution to scholarship—all articles are refereed prior to publication, each issue contains 120-130 book reviews, the proceedings of a dozen or more scholarly meetings are included, and abstracts of papers given at those meetings are presented.

J. Max Dixon edits Watauga County Times...Past..., a newsletter of the Watauga County Historical Society and the ASU History Department. The newsletter is published quarterly, and includes news of the Society, the ASU History Department, local news about local history, and one feature article. The focus of the newsletter this year is genealogy. Dr. Dixon would like to solicit contributions to Watauga County Times...Past...; these should be sent to Box 1306, Boone, NC 28607.

Bettie Bond is the editor of the SASASAAS Review, which has recently been changed from a biannual to an annual journal. A more current newsletter will be produced at the Univ. of Ga., Athens. SASASAAS Review will now include more articles, film reviews, book reviews, and teaching curricula for those involved in Asian and African Studies. Anyone wishing to contribute or subscribe to the Review should contact Bettie Bond at the ASU History Department.

Allen Wells edits the South Eastern Latin Americanist (SELA), the journal of the South Eastern Council of Latin American Studies, whose secretariat is based at ASU. The SELA is published quarterly and includes articles of original scholarship, book reviews, and news and comments. It is the only regional journal of Latin American Studies in America.

Helena Lewis is serving on the Boards of the Southeast Women's Studies Association and the Southern Association of Woman Historians, and she co-chairs the ASU Women's Studies Committee. She presented a paper, "The Political Odyssey of Elsa Triolet," at the 1982 meeting of the Southeast Women's Studies Association, and is currently working on a biography of Elsa Triolet, and an introduction to a reprint of one of her novels.

Michael Moore continues as editor of Albion and as a member of the Executive Committee of the North American Conference on British Studies. He published seven book reviews this past year in the American Historical Review, History: Reviews of Books, Choice, and Victorian Studies. He also presented a paper, "Academic Journals and Historical Scholarship," at the October 1981 meeting of the NACBS, was elected President for 1982 of the History Editors Conference of the American Historical Association, and worked on a paper, "The Tariff and American Investment in Canada, 1890-1939."

Peter Petschauer read a paper "Conversations with My Father" before the 1981 session of the Duquesne History Forum.

Judith Pulley is the ASU Coordinator of Long-Range Planning. She is also a Board member of the North Carolina Humanities Committee. Her paper "Thomas Jefferson and America" was presented at the Boone meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and she has written a review for the Journal of Southern History.

Raymond Pulley is pursuing research on the cultural impact of the Williamsburg restoration; the architectural history of New England; and the architecture of Thomas Jefferson. This year he is also organizing the History Department's Faculty Seminars.

Carl Ross has compiled a 1860 Census of Watauga County and a 1870 Census of Watauga County. He has been elected Vice President of the Western North Carolina Historical Association, Chairman of the Smithwick Award Committee of the NC Society of County and Local Historians, Vice President and Program Chairman of the Watauga County Historical Society and continues to serve on the Executive Committee of the Southeastern Council on Latin American Studies. He has completed research on a paper entitled "Scotch-Irish Influences in the Settlement of Sumach Creek, Murray County, Georgia." This past summer Carl spent eight weeks in Mexico with the ASU Summer Study Program.

Donald Saunders delivered a paper entitled "Gustav Stresemann and European Unity" at the November 1981 meeting of the Southern Historical Association in Dallas. During the Spring term of 1982 he served as Faculty Resident Director for Appalachian House, Washington, DC. Earlier in the year he acted as Counselor/Advisor at the National Meeting of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity in New Orleans.

Stephen Simon spent the first half of the summer as the Resident Director of the New York Loft. While in New York he did research at the New York Public Library and the New York University Library on the meaning of the Greek city-state for the 7th and 6th centuries. He served as a consultant for a National Endowment for the Humanities Project, Richmond Technical College, NC, April 1982. He also helped organize the ASU Conference on Nuclear Arms Deterrence in which he was a presentor. His publications included a note in the Classical Bulletin and reviews in the American Historical Review and History: Review of Books. In addition to the Greek polis, he is conducting research on the writings of the 4th century historian Eutropius.

Allen Wells was named Secretary-Treasurer of the Southeastern Council of Latin American Studies and editor of the Southeastern Latin Americanist; he organized and participated in a conference on "Hispanic American Migration" for Social Studies teachers in Western North Carolina; and presented a paper on the Nicaraguan Revolution at a fall 1981 Education Forum.

David L. White published his article "A New Avenue for Resolution of Commercial Conflict in 18th Century India," in Annals, SERC/AAS, 3(1981). He is the local arrangements chairman for the 1983 Southeast Regional Conference of the Association for Asian Studies, and program director for the SASASAAS Semester-in-India program, Fall 1983. In October he presented a paper, "Parsi Philanthropy in 18th C. Surat" at the University of Pittsburgh.

Marvin Williamsen continues as director of the Educational Exchange Program between ASU and the Northeastern Institute of Technology in the People's Republic of China and coordinator of Interdisciplinary Studies/Watauga College. He also serves as a member of the Executive Committee and chairperson of the Professional Development Committee of the Southern Atlantic States Association for Asian and African Studies (SASASAAS).

Jim Winders continues his research on various "post-structuralist" aspects of recent French intellectual history, especially: (1) Michel Foucault, (2) Jacques Derrida, and (3) Jacques Lacan and the History of Psychoanalysis in France. Having completed his paper "Cogito, Foucault, Derrida, and the Deconstructed Historian," he is now writing "Foucault and Marx." In November, 1981, he lectured on "Dada and Deconstruction" at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and in August, 1982 published an essay-review of Camera Lucida: Reflections on Photography by Roland Barthes in Magill's Literary Annual 1982.
